The Washington Post
1150 15th STREET, N. W.
WASHINGTON, D. C. 20071-5530
(202) 334-6000

OUTLOOK
(202) 334-7573

Feb. 24

Dear Mr. Weisberg,

There is no need for you to explain who you are. One of the lines cut from my review, for space, was a compliment to you--as honest and [redacted] indefatigable. I have no great theories as to what happened in Dallas, but, like you, I recognize a dishonest piece of work (Posner's) when I see it.

Kent Carroll is a friend of mine, and of course I would love to get a copy of "Case Open." But then you will lose one set of royalties. I would also love to review it, but suspect the Post wants to parcel out this subject.

For some time, I've wanted to make a pilgrimage to Frederick, to meet you; and perhaps, this spring, if you have the time, I will. I'm flattered that you read, and [redacted] liked, my review last fall.

Sincerely,

Gelt Frau